Title of good practice
Master in Management of Social Enterprises - HEC-Ulg Centre d'Economie Sociale (CES), University of Liege Master course – Belgium
Brief description (including what level: local/national/European)
The Master in “Management of social enterprises” enables students with an analysis and management capacity in order to be able to manage the major functions of an enterprise, to understand the various forms of economic organisations and their roles and specificity, as well as to analyse and anticipate societal challenges. Second, it equips students with operational tools, such as knowing the (economic, political, legal) environment in which enterprises operate (be it at the regional, national or European level), learning managerial practices of social entrepreneurship, and mastering the tools designed to take into account social and environmental concerns. Finally, students are provided with a relational network, meeting the main actors of social entrepreneurship in Belgium, networking with similar experiences in Europe and elsewhere.
Objectives, learning approach, methods, topics used in the training/program, target group
The programme is offered under an intensive pedagogical guidance, focused on the gradual development of the student’s autonomy.
Added value for SE4A project
The present programme is important since it gives the opportunity to see how it equips students with operational tools, such as the knowledge of the economic, political and legal environment in which enterprises operate, the learning of managerial practices of social entrepreneurship, and so on. Furthermore, it is interesting to see how students are provided with a relational network, meeting the main actors of social entrepreneurship.
